- Data Analysis and Visualization

- Conclusion

Introduction > This data wrangling project is focused on gathering, assessing, cleaning, and analyzing dog ratings from tweeter. In the gathering process, the data will be obtained using three different methods, which include: » - Downloading a file manually from an online server » - Downloading a file programmatically from an online server » - Querying the Tweeter API to obtain the number of likes and retweets by tweet id.

In the data assessment stage, the goal will be to identify and document data quality and tidiness issues. This will pave way for the data cleaning stage. After all the issues in the datasets have been identified, the next quest will be to clean both quality and tidiness issues. After cleaning is complete, analysis and visualization will commence.

1.2 Import the required libraries.

[1]: import configparser import pandas as pd
import numpy as np
import matplotlib.pyplot as plt import requests import tweepy import json
```

```
import os import re

from bs4 import BeautifulSoup

%matplotlib inline
```

```
Data Gathering
Load the twitter archive enhanced csv file into the pandas dataframe

[2]: Dog_tweets_df = pd.read_csv('Datasets/twitter-archive-enhanced.csv')
```

Download the tweet image predictions

[3]: # # Check the if the required folder exists. If it does not exist, create it # folder_name = 'Datasets'
if not os.path.exists(folder_name):
os.makedirs(folder_name)

# Use the request.get method to get access the data from the server.
url = 'https://d17h27t6h515a5.cloudfront.net/topher/2017/August/#       →599fd2ad_image-predictions/image-predictions.tsv'
response = requests.get(url)

# Save the responses in a .tsv file
with open(os.path.join(folder_name,url.split('/')[1]), mode = 'wb') as file:
file.write(response.content)

1.2.1 Load the Image prediction file into the pandas dataframe

[4]: image_prediction_df = pd.read_csv('Datasets/image-predictions.tsv', sep='\t')
```

Get additional data from the Twitter API
```

[5]: # Read the configurations config = configparser.ConfigParser() config.read('config.ini')

api_key = config['twitter']['api_key'] api_key_secret = config['twitter']['api_key_secret'] access_token = config['twitter']['access_token'] access_token_secret = config['twitter']['access_token_secret']

```

[6]: # Authentication
auth = tweepy.OAuthHandler(api_key, api_key_secret) auth.set_access_token(access_token, access_token_secret)

api = tweepy.API(auth, wait_on_rate_limit=True)
```

```
[7]: # # Extract all the tweet IDs in the WeRateDogs Twitter archive and save them
      # → in a python list.
      # tweet_response_counts = []
      # for tweet_id in Dog_tweets_df.tweet_id:

      #     finally:
      #         tweet_id = tweet_info.id
      #         retweet_count = tweet_info.retweet_count
      #         favorite_count = tweet_info.favorite_count

      #         tweet_response_counts.append({'tweet_id':tweet_id,
      #                                       'retweet_count':retweet_count,
      #                                       'favorite_count':favorite_count})
      #         print(tweet_id)
      # counts_df = pd.DataFrame(tweet_response_counts, columns = ['tweet_id', # → 'retweet_count', 'favorite_count'])

[8]: # counts_df.to_csv('Datasets/reaction_counts.csv', index=False)

1.2.2 Load the dataframe into the pandas dataframe

[9]: reaction_counts_df = pd.read_csv('Datasets/reaction_counts.csv')
```

Assessing Data

1. Twitter Archive Assessment

Assessment Report

1.3.1 Quality Issues

Dog_tweet dataframe

1. The dataframe contains retweet information which is not needed since a user can retweet their own tweet.
2. The `in_reply_to_status_id` column has 2278 null entries
3. The `in_reply_to_user_id` column has 2278 null entries
4. The `retweeted_status_id` column has 2175 null entries
5. The `retweeted_status_user_id` column has 2175 null entries
6. The `retweeted_status_timestamp` column has 2175 null entries
7. The `expanded_urls` column has 59 null entries
8. Some of the entries in the `expanded_urls` column contains double entries that are duplicates.
9. `source` column contains tags (``).
10. Erroneous datatypes (`timestamp`, `retweeted_status_timestamp` columns).
11. Some of the entries in the `rating_numerator` and `rating_denominator` columns are wrong.
12. The `rating_numerator` and `rating_denominator` have data types as string instead of float

image prediction dataframe

1. This dataframe has non-descriptive column names.
2. Comparing the number of entries in the image prediction dataframe and the dog tweets dataframe, it is clear that some of the tweets have no corresponding image predictions in the image prediction dataframe.

Favourite counts & retweet counts dataframe

- No issues detected

1.3.2 Tidiness Issues

Dog_tweet dataframe

1. timestamp column has two variable entries (Date & Time).
2. retweeted_status_timestamp has two variable entries (Date & Time).
3. source column has two variables (source name & source url).
4. text column has four variables in the same column (The tweet, rating_numerator, rating_denominator, Tweet link). note: the tweet link in this column is similar to the link in the source column
5. The doggo, floofer, pupper, puppo should be variables.

image prediction dataframe

- No issues detected

Favourite counts & retweet counts dataframe

1. We do not need this table because the information it holds (favourite counts and retweet counts) should appear alongside each respective tweet in the dog tweet dataframe.

2 Data Cleaning

[24]: # Make copies of the datasets tweet_clean = Dog_tweets_df.copy() image_prediction_clean = image_prediction_df.copy() reaction_count_clean = reaction_counts_df.copy()
```

2.1 Quality issues

2.2 Dog Tweet dataframe

Define:

The dataframe contains retweet information which is not needed since a user can retweet their own tweet To solve this problem, we need to drop all the rows that contain retweet information.

Code

[25]: tweet_clean = tweet_clean[tweet_clean.retweeted_status_id.isnull()]
```

Test

[26]: # Use the .notnull() method to check if all the rows with retweeted status id ↪ have been dropped verify_drop = tweet_clean[tweet_clean.retweeted_status_id.notnull()]

If the drop was successful, the verify drop dataframe should be empty
verify_drop
```

```
[26]: Empty DataFrame
Columns: [tweet_id, in_reply_to_status_id, in_reply_to_user_id, timestamp, source, text, retweeted_status_id, retweeted_status_user_id, retweeted_status_timestamp, expanded_urls, rating_numerator, rating_denominator, name, doggo, floofer, pupper, puppo]
Index: []
```

2.2.1 Dealing with missing data

Define:

- The dog_tweet dataframe: > - retweeted_status_id, retweeted_status_user_id, and retweeted_status_timestamp columns are all empty. We need to use .drop to delete these columns from the dataframe. > - The in_reply_to_status_id, in_reply_to_user_id, have many missing records, all of which we have no means to recover. Since we will not be needing them during analysis, we can drop them off.
- For the expanded_urls column, only few entries (59) are missing. However, we have no means of finding the data. So, we can hold it as it is for now.

[27]: tweet_clean = tweet_clean.drop(['in_reply_to_status_id',
                                     'in_reply_to_user_id',
                                     'retweeted_status_id',
                                     'retweeted_status_user_id',
                                     'retweeted_status_timestamp'],
                                     axis=1)
```

Test

[28]: # If the columns were dropped successfully, the assert statement will run ↪ without an assertion error.
dropped_columns = ['in_reply_to_status_id',
                  'in_reply_to_user_id',
                  'retweeted_status_id',
                  'retweeted_status_user_id',
                  'retweeted_status_timestamp']
for col in dropped_columns:
```

```
assert col not in tweet_clean.columns
```

2.2.2 Dealing with duplicated records

Some of the entries in the `expanded_urls` column contains double entries that are duplicates. ####
Define: For the entries with two URLs, only pick the first url and drop the others

Code

[29]: separator = ',' for entry in tweet_clean.expanded_urls:
          if separator in str(entry):
              tweet_clean.expanded_urls = entry.split(',')[0]
```

Test

[30]: # If the duplicated urls were removed successfully, this test will pass without # an assertion error
      for url in tweet_clean.expanded_urls:
          assert separator not in url

2.2.3 source column contain a tags ().

Define Extract the href and name of the source from the a tag. After the extraction, delete the old source column

code

[31]: for tag in tweet_clean.source:
      soup = BeautifulSoup(tag, "html.parser") tweet_clean['source_name'] = soup.find('a').contents[0] tweet_clean['source_url'] = soup.find('a').get('href')

      # Now, delete the old column
      tweet_clean.drop('source', axis=1, inplace=True)
```

Test

[32]: # Assert that the new columns have been added to the dataframe and that the old # column has been downloaded.
      # If the code above was successful, these assertion tests should pass without # assertion errors.
      new_column = ['source_name', 'source_url']
      for col in new_column:
          assert col in tweet_clean.columns

      assert 'source' not in tweet_clean.columns
```

2.2.4 Erroneous datatypes (timestamp, retweeted_status_timestamp, columns).

Define:

- Timestamp, retweeted_status_timestamp columns have some tidiness issues. Therefore, we hold this columns for now.

2.2.5 Some of the entries in the rating_numerator and rating_denominator columns are wrong.

Define: Drop the existing rating numerator and rating denominator columns and extract new values from the data in the text column.

[33]: # drop the existing rating numerator and rating denominator columns tweet_clean = tweet_clean.drop(['rating_numerator', 'rating_denominator'], →axis=1)

extract the ratings from the text columns and create new rating numerator and →rating denominator columns pattern = '(\d+\.\?(\d+)?)[/]\d+)' tweet_clean['ratings'] = (tweet_clean['text'].str.extract(pattern)[0]) tweet_clean[['rating_numerator', 'rating_denominator']] = tweet_clean.ratings.
    →str.split('/', expand = True)

drop the ratings column
tweet_clean = tweet_clean.drop('ratings', axis=1)
```

Test

[34]: # use .info to display the dataframe and check if the changes have been made →successfully.
tweet_clean.info()
```

```
<class 'pandas.core.frame.DataFrame'>
Int64Index: 2175 entries, 0 to 2355

2.2.6 The rating numerator and rating denominator have data types as string instead of float

Define: convert the rating numerator and the rating denominator to floats.

[35]: tweet_clean.rating_numerator = tweet_clean.rating_numerator.astype(float)
      tweet_clean.rating_denominator = tweet_clean.rating_denominator.astype(float)

2.3 Image Prediction dataframe

2.3.1 This dataframe has non-descriptive column names.

Define: Change: > - img_num -> number_of_images > - p1 -> prediction_1 > - p1_conf -> prediction_1_confidence > - p1_dog -> prediction_1_dog > - p2 -> prediction_2 > - p2_conf -> prediction_2_confidence > - p2_dog -> prediction_2_dog > - p3 -> prediction_3 > - p3_conf -> prediction_3_confidence > - p3_dog -> prediction_3_dog

```
[37]: image_prediction_clean.columns = ['tweet_id', 'jpg_url', 'number_of_images', ↳ 'prediction_1', 'prediction_1_confidence', 'prediction_1_dog',
    ↳ 'prediction_2', 'prediction_2_confidence', 'prediction_2_dog',
    ↳ 'prediction_3', 'prediction_3_confidence', 'prediction_3_dog']

```
[38]: image_prediction_clean.columns
```

[38]: Index(['tweet_id', 'jpg_url', 'number_of_images', 'prediction_1',
    'prediction_1_confidence', 'prediction_1_dog', 'prediction_2',
    'prediction_2_confidence', 'prediction_2_dog', 'prediction_3',
    'prediction_3_confidence', 'prediction_3_dog'], dtype='object')

2.3.2 Comparing the number of entries in the image prediction dataframe and the dog tweets dataframe, it is clear that some of the tweets have no corresponding image predictions in the image prediction dataframe.

Define: Since there are fewer entries in the in the image prediction dataframe than in the dog tweet dataframe, it is evident that some of the dog tweets dont have image predictions. Since we have no means of obtaining the predictions, there is nothing we can do to address this issue.

2.4 Tidiness issues

2.5 Dog Tweet dataframe

2.5.1 Timestamp column has two variable entries (Date & Time).

Define: Separate the timestamp column to form the date column and the time columns > - first drop the '+0000' at the end of every entry > - since the date and time are separated using a space, separate them and assign the entry to the left to the date column and that in the right of the space to the time column

```
[39]: for stamp in tweet_clean.timestamp:
    stamp = stamp[:-6]
    tweet_clean['date'], tweet_clean['time'] = stamp.split(' ', 1)

    # Now, drop the old timestamp column
    tweet_clean.drop('timestamp', axis=1, inplace=True)
```

Test

[40]: # Display the columns of the dataframe to check that the timestamp column has ↳ been created and that the date & time columns have been created tweet_clean.columns
```

```
[40]: Index(['tweet_id', 'text', 'expanded_urls', 'name', 'doggo', 'floofer',
        'pupper', 'puppo', 'source_name', 'source_url', 'rating_numerator',
        'rating_denominator', 'date', 'time'],
        dtype='object')
```

Now that the timestamp has been separated as required, we can comfortably change the datatypes of the columns.

2.5.2 source column has two variables (source name & source url).

Define: This column contained two sets of data within the 'a' tags. However, when extracting the content of the 'a' tags, this tidiness issue was solved since the source name and the source url were extracted and put into different columns.

2.5.3 Text column has four variables in the same column (The tweet, rating_numerator, rating_denominator, Tweet link). note: the tweet link in this column is similar to the link in the source column

Define: Drop the URLs from the message. Do not drop the ratings since the tweet message may be incomplete without the ratings. Also drop the hash tags that appear at the end of the message.

      hash_tags = '\s#[a-zA-Z]+'

Guys this was terrifying. Really spooked me up. We don't rate ghosts. We rate dogs. Please only send dogs... 9/10
IT'S PUPPERGEDDON. Total of 144/120 ...I think
This is Ralph. He's an interpretive dancer. 10/10
This is Sadie. She got her holidays confused. 9/10 damn it Sadie
This was Cindy's face when she heard Susan forgot the snacks for after the kid's soccer game. 11/10 Endangered triangular pup here. Could be a wizard. Caught mid-laugh. No legs.

Just fluff. Probably a wizard. 9/10
 In honor of the new Star Wars movie. Here's Yoda pug. 12/10 pet really well, would I
 This is a dog swinging. I really enjoyed it so I hope you all do as well. 11/10
 This is Sandy. He's sexually confused. Thinks he's a pigeon. Also an All-American cheese catcher. 10/10 so petable Contortionist pup here. Inside pentagram. Clearly worships Satan. Known to slowly push fragile stuff off tables 6/10
 Reckless pupper here. Not even looking at road. Absolute menace. No regard for fellow pupper lives. 10/10 still cute
 Not much to say here. I just think everyone needs to see this. 12/10
 Say hello to Axel. He's a Black Chevy Pinot on wheels. 0 to 60 in 5.7 seconds (if downhill). 9/10 I call shotgun Downright inspiring 12/10
 This dog gave up mid jump. 9/10
 Meet Humphrey. He's a Northern Polyp Viagra. One ear works. Face stuck like that. Always surprised. 9/10 petable af
 This is Derek. All the dogs adore Derek. He's a great guy. 10/10 really solid pup Meet Tassy & Bee. Tassy is pretty chill, but Bee is convinced the Ruffles are haunted. 10/10 & 11/10 respectively
 This is Juckson. He's totally on his way to a nascar race. 5/10 for Juckson
 This is the happiest pupper I've ever seen. 10/10 would trade lives with Say hello to Chuq. He just wants to fit in. 11/10
 Here we see a Byzantine Rigatoni. Very aerodynamic. No eyes. Actually not windy here they just look like that. 9/10
 This is Cooper. He doesn't know how cheese works. Likes the way it feels on his face. Cheeky tongue slip. 11/10
 10/10 I'd follow this dog into battle no questions asked

 Who leaves the last cupcake just sitting there? 9/10
 Here we see a rare pouched pupper. Ample storage space. Looks alert. Jumps at random. Kicked open that door. 8/10
 Super speedy pupper. Does not go gentle into that goodnight. 10/10
 Exotic handheld dog here. Appears unathletic. Feet look deadly. Can be thrown a great distance. 5/10 might pet idk Meet Ash. He's just a head now. Lost his body during the Third Crusade. Still in good spirits. 10/10 would pet well
 Finally some constructive political change in this country. 11/10
 Watch out Airbud. This pupper is also good at the sports. 12/10 I'm thinking D1
 Say hello to Penny & Gizmo. They are practicing their caroling. The ambition in the room is tangible. 9/10 for both
 When someone yells "cops!" at a party and you gotta get your drunk friend out of there. 10/10

I promise this wasn't meant to be a cuteness overload account but ermergerd look at this cozy pupper. 13/10
 This is the saddest/sweetest/best picture I've been sent. 12/10 screeches for a sec and then faints 12/10
 This is Godzilla pupper. He had a ruff childhood & now deflects that pain outward by terrorizing cities. Tragic 9/10
 This pupper loves leaves. 11/10 for committed leaf lover After some outrage from the crowd. Bubbles is being upgraded to a 7/10. That's as high as I'm going. Thank you This is Bubbles. He kinda resembles a fish. Always makes eye contact with u no matter what. Sneaky tongue slip. 5/10 Meet Vinnie. He's having fun while being safe. Well not a lot of fun, but definitely safe, and that's important 8/10
 This pupper is very passionate about Christmas. Wanted to give the tree a hug.
 So cute. 8/10
 ITSOFLUFFAYYYYY 12/10
 Say hello to Griffin. He's upset because his costume for Halloween didn't arrive until today. 9/10 cheer up pup
 Three generations of pupper. 11/10 for all Hope your Monday isn't too awful. Here's two baseball puppers. 11/10 for each Meet Duke. He's an Urban Parmesan. They know he's scared of the green rubber dog. "Why u do dis?" thinks Duke. 10/10
 All this pupper wanted to do was go skiing. No one told him about the El Niño.
 Poor pupper. 10/10 maybe next year Say hello to Winston. He has no respect for the system. Much rebellion. I think that's a palm tree... nice. 8/10
 This is Kenneth. He's stuck in a bubble. 10/10 hang in there Kenneth This is Herm. He just wants to be like the other dogs. Sneaky tongue slip. Super fuzzy. 9/10 would cuddle firmly
 These two pups just met and have instantly bonded. Spectacular scene.
 Mesmerizing af. 10/10 and 7/10 for blue dog
 This is Bert. He likes flowers. 10/10
 Here we are witnessing a very excited dog. Clearly has no control over neck movements. 8/10 would still pet Meet Striker. He's ready for Christmas. 11/10 Extremely rare pup here. Very religious. Always praying. Too many legs. Not overwhelmingly fluffy. Won't bark. 3/10
 "Yes hello I'ma just snag this here toasted bagel real quick. carry on." 9/10
 I'm sure you've all seen this pupper. Not prepared at all for the flying disc of terror. 10/10
 This is Donny. He's summoning the demon monster Babadook. 6/10 Donny please no that won't be a good time for anyone Breathtaking scene. A father taking care of his newborn pup. Tugs at the heartstrings. 10/10 restores my faith Ok, I'll admit this is a pretty adorable bunny hopping towards the ocean but please only send in dogs... 11/10 & this is Yoshi. Another world record contender 11/10 (what the hell is happening why are there so many contenders?)

Here we have an entire platoon of puppies. Total score: 88/80 would pet all at once

This dog is being demoted to a 9/10 for not wearing a helmet while riding. Gotta stay safe out there. Thank you

This is Pepper. She's not fully comfortable riding her imaginary bike yet. 10/10 don't worry pupper, it gets easier

HELLO FROM THE OTHER SIIIIIIIIIDE 10/10s

Here's a handful of sleepy puppies. All look unaware of their surroundings. Lousy guard dogs. Still cute tho 11/10s

This is Bernie. He just touched a boob for the first time. 10/10

Say hello to Buddah. He was Waldo for Halloween. 11/10

Here's a pupper licking in slow motion. 12/10 please enjoy

This is Lenny. He was just told that he couldn't explore the fish tank. 12/10 smh all that work for nothing

We've got ourselves a battle here. Watch out Reggie. 11/10

This is a Sizzlin Menorah spaniel from Brooklyn named Wylie. Lovable eyes. Chiller as hell. 10/10 and I'm out.. poof Seriously guys?! Only send in dogs. I only rate dogs. This is a baby black bear... 11/10

This is Ellie AKA Queen Slayer of the Orbs. Very self-motivated. Great yard. Rad foliage. 10/10 would pet diligently

Meet Sammy. He's a Motorola Firefox. Hat under hoodie (must be a half-decent up and coming white rapper) 10/10

12/10 stay woke

I shall call him squishy and he shall be mine, and he shall be my squishy. 13/10

Meet Reggie. He's going for the world record. Must concentrate. Focus up pup. 11/10 we all believe in you Reggie

RT until we find this dog. Clearly a cool dog (front leg relaxed out window). Looks to be a superb driver. 10/10

Rare shielded battle dog here. Very happy about abundance of lettuce. Painfully slow fetcher. Still petable. 5/10

Happy Friday. Here's some golden puppies. 12/10 for all

The tail alone is 13/10. Great dog, better owner

This is Daisy. She loves that shoe. Still no seat belt. Super churlish. 12/10 the dogs are killing it today

Everyone needs to watch this. 13/10

Yea I lied. Here's more. All 13/10

Good morning here's a grass pupper. 12/10

This is Arnold. He broke his leg saving a handicapped child from a forest fire. True hero. 10/10 inspirational dog

What kind of person sends in a picture without a dog in it? 1/10 just because that's a nice table

holy shit 12/10

When you're presenting a group project and the 4th guy tells the teacher that he did all the work. 10/10

This is Coops. He's yelling at the carpet. Not very productive Coops. 7/10

 hardwood flooring. 9/10
 Bedazzled pup here. Fashionable af. Super yellow. Looks hella fluffy. Webbed paws for efficient fetching. 8/10
 This is Superpup. His head isn't proportional to his body. Has yet to serve any justice. 11/10 maybe one day pupper
 This pup was carefully tossed to make it look like she's riding that horse. I have no words this is fabulous. 12/10
 These two pups are masters of camouflage. Very dedicated to the craft. Both must've spent decades practicing. 10/10s
 Just received another perfect photo of dogs and the sunset. 12/10
 Everyone please just appreciate how perfect these two photos are. 12/10 for both
 This is Sophie. She just saw a spider. 10/10 don't just stand there Sophie Some clarification is required. The dog is singing Cher and that is more than worthy of an 11/10. Thank you
 " DO YOU BELIEVE IN LIFE AFTER LOVE " 11/10
 Meet Rufio. He is unaware of the pink legless pupper wrapped around him. Might want to get that checked 10/10 & 4/10 Meet Patrick. He's an exotic pup. Jumps great distances for a dog. Always gets injured when I toss him a ball. 3/10 Meet Jeb & Bush. Jeb is somehow stuck in that fence and Bush won't stop whispering sweet nothings in his ear. 9/10s
 This is Rodman. He's getting destroyed by the surfs. Valiant effort though.
 10/10 better than most puppers probably

Two gorgeous dogs here. Little waddling dog is a rebel. Refuses to look at camera. Must be a preteen. 5/10 & 8/10

When you see sophomores in high school driving. 11/10

This pupper is fed up with being tickled. 12/10 I'm currently working on an elaborate heist to steal this dog

Rare submerged pup here. Holds breath for a long time. Frowning because that spoon ignores him. 5/10 would still pet

The 13/10 also takes into account this impeccable yard. Louis is great but the future dad in me can't ignore that luscious green grass

This is Louis. He thinks he's flying. 13/10 this is a legendary pup

This pupper just wants a belly rub. This pupper has nothing to do w the tree being sideways now. 10/10 good pupper

This is a southern Vesuvius bumblegruff. Can drive a truck (wow). Made friends with 5 other nifty dogs (neat). 7/10

Oh goodness. A super rare northeast Qdoba kangaroo mix. Massive feet. No pouch (disappointing). Seems alert. 9/10

Those are sunglasses and a jean jacket. 11/10 dog cool af

Unique dog here. Very small. Lives in container of Frosted Flakes (?). Short legs. Must be rare 6/10 would still pet

Here we have a mixed Asiago from the Galápagos Islands. Only one ear working. Big fan of marijuana carpet. 8/10

Look at this jokester thinking seat belt laws don't apply to him. Great tongue tho 10/10

This is an extremely rare horned Parthenon. Not amused. Wears shoes. Overall very nice. 9/10 would pet aggressively
 This is a funny dog. Weird toes. Won't come down. Loves branch. Refuses to eat his food. Hard to cuddle with. 3/10
 This is an Albanian 3 1/2 legged Episcopalian. Loves well-polished hardwood flooring. Penis on the collar. 9/10
 Can take selfies 11/10
 Very concerned about fellow dog trapped in computer. 10/10
 Not familiar with this breed. No tail (weird). Only 2 legs. Doesn't bark.
 Surprisingly quick. Shits eggs. 1/10
 Oh my. Here you are seeing an Adobe Setter giving birth to twins!!! The world is an amazing place. 11/10
 Can stand on stump for what seems like a while. Built that birdhouse?
 Impressive. Made friends with a squirrel. 8/10
 This appears to be a Mongolian Presbyterian mix. Very tired. Tongue slip confirmed. 9/10 would lie down with Here we have a well-established sunblockerspaniel. Lost his other flip-flop. 6/10 not very waterproof
 Let's hope this flight isn't Malaysian (lol). What a dog! Almost completely camouflaged. 10/10 I trust this pilot
 Here we have a northern speckled Rhododendron. Much sass. Gives 0 fucks. Good tongue. 9/10 would caress sensually
 This is the happiest dog you will ever see. Very committed owner. Nice couch. 10/10
 Here is the Rand Paul of retrievers folks! He's probably good at poker. Can drink beer (lol rad). 8/10 good dog
 My oh my. This is a rare blond Canadian terrier on wheels. Only $8.98. Rather docile. 9/10 very rare
 Here is a Siberian heavily armored polar bear mix. Strong owner. 10/10 I would do unspeakable things to pet this dog
 This is an odd dog. Hard on the outside but loving on the inside. Petting still fun. Doesn't play catch well. 2/10
 This is a truly beautiful English Wilson Staff retriever. Has a nice phone. Privileged. 10/10 would trade lives with Here we have a 1949 1st generation vulpix. Enjoys sweat tea and Fox News. Cannot be phased. 5/10
 This is a purebred Piers Morgan. Loves to Netflix and chill. Always looks like he forgot to unplug the iron. 6/10
 Here is a very happy pup. Big fan of well-maintained decks. Just look at that tongue. 9/10 would cuddle af
 This is a western brown Mitsubishi terrier. Upset about leaf. Actually 2 dogs here. 7/10 would walk the shit out of Here we have a Japanese Irish Setter. Lost eye in Vietnam (?). Big fan of relaxing on stair. 8/10 would pet

2.5.4 The doggo, floofer, pupper, puppo should be variables under Dog_stage column

Define combine the columns and separate the entries with a dash (-) then delete the word None to remain with the affectionate names only. Lastly, drop the old unwanted columns

code

```
[46]: tweet_clean["dog_stage"] = tweet_clean['doggo'] + tweet_clean['floofer'] + ↪tweet_clean['pupper']+ tweet_clean['puppo'] tweet_clean.dog_stage = tweet_clean.dog_stage.str.replace('None', '')
      # tweet_clean.dog_stage = tweet_clean.dog_stage.str.strip('-')

      # Now drop the old columns
      tweet_clean.drop(['doggo', 'floofer', 'pupper', 'puppo'], axis=1, inplace=True)
```

Test

[47]: # Display the dataframe that has non-empty entries in the dog_stage column to ↪confirm that the new combined # column was created successfully.
      tweet_clean[tweet_clean.dog_stage != '']

2.6 Favourite counts & retweet counts dataframe

2.6.1 We do not need this table because the information it holds (favourite counts and retweet counts) should appear alongside each respective tweet in the dog tweet dataframe.

Define: Combine/merge the reactions count dataframe and the image prediction dataframe to the tweet dataframe on the tweet id

code

```

      tweet_master = pd.merge(tweet_plus_reaction, image_prediction_clean, tweet_master.head()

4.1 Questions that need to be answered from the data

1. What is the proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the first, second, and third prediction? How do these proportions compare against each other?
2. Compare the population of dogs in different stages.
3. Is a particular dog stage associated with higher

Since we will be needing to work with proportions in multiple occasions. To avoid repetition, it is elegant to define a function that we can invoke any time we want to calculate a proportion. The cell below defines a proportion function

[53]: # Defining the proportion function def proportion(total, interest_items):
    """
    Description: This is a function that calculates the proportion of items of →interest

    Inputs:
        total: This is the total number of items to be considered in →calculating the proportions interest_items: This is the number of items of interest whose →proportion needs to be calculated.

    Results:
        prop: This is the result obtained after dividing the interest_items by →the total
    """
    if interest_items > total:
        result = "Items of interest must be less than or equal to the total →number of items"
    else:
        result = interest_items/total return(result)
```

4.2 Question 1A: What is the proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the first prediction?

[54]: total_prediction = df_clean.prediction_1_dog.value_counts().sum() total_prediction
```

```
[54]: 2012
```

4.2.1 Proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the first prediction

[55]: # Number of True dog results in the prediction_1_true = df_clean.query('prediction_1_dog == True') prediction_1_true = prediction_1_true.tweet_id.value_counts().sum() prediction_1_true
```

```
[55]: 1490
```

```
[56]: prop_prediction_1_true = proportion(total_prediction, prediction_1_true)
prop_prediction_1_true
```

```
[56]: 0.7405566600397614
```

4.2.2 Proportion of image predictions that did not give a dog image in the first prediction

[57]: # Number of False dog results in the first prediction prediction_1_false = df_clean.query('prediction_1_dog == False')['tweet_id'].
    →value_counts().sum()
prediction_1_false

prop_prediction_1_false
```

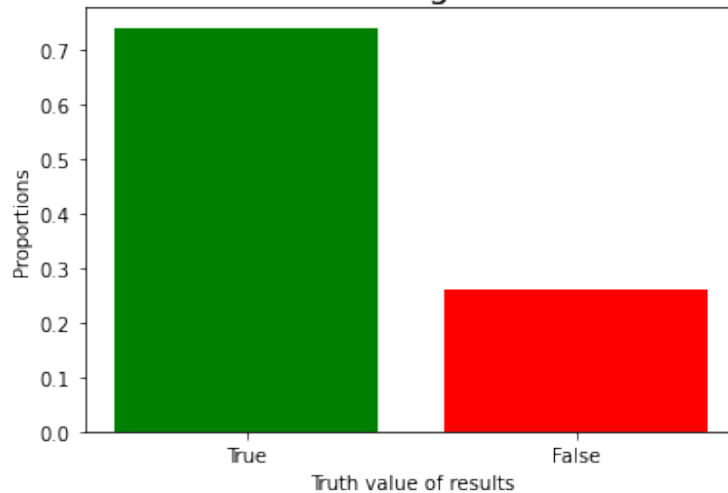

```
[58]: 0.25944333996023855

Results: These results indicate that the true dog predictions in the first prediction are about 0.74 while the false dog predictions make up about 0.26 of all predictions. To get better insights about these proportions, we need to visualize the results.

4.2.3 Visualization of the proportions of True and False dog results in the first prediction

    →fontsize=18)
plt.xlabel('Truth value of results', fontsize=10)
plt.ylabel('Proportions', fontsize=10);
```

4.3 Question 1B: What is the proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the second prediction?

4.3.1 Proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the second prediction

[60]: prediction_2_true = df_clean.query('prediction_2_dog == True')['tweet_id'].

4.3.2 Proportion of image predictions that did not give a dog image in the second prediction

      prop_prediction_2_false

[63]: 0.2485089463220676

Results: These results indicate that the true dog predictions in the first prediction are about 0.75 while the false dog predictions make up about 0.25 of all predictions. To get better insights about these proportions, we need to visualize the results.

4.3.3 Visualization of the proportions of True and False dog results in the second prediction

[64]: results = ['True', 'False']
proportions = [prop_prediction_2_true, prop_prediction_2_false]

proportions of True and False dog results in the second prediction

4.4 Question 1C: What is the proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the third prediction?

4.4.1 Proportion of image predictions that gave a dog image in the third prediction

[65]: prediction_3_true = df_clean.query('prediction_3_dog == True')['tweet_id'].
         ↳value_counts().sum()
prediction_3_true
```

[65]: 1460

[66]: prop_prediction_3_true = proportion(total_prediction, prediction_3_true)
prop_prediction_3_true

[66]: 0.7256461232604374

4.4.2 Proportion of image predictions that did not give a dog image in the third prediction

[67]: # Number of False dog results in the first prediction prediction_3_false = df_clean.query('prediction_3_dog == False')['tweet_id'].
    →value_counts().sum()
prediction_3_false
```

```
[67]: 552
```

```
[68]: prop_prediction_3_false = proportion(total_prediction, prediction_3_false)
prop_prediction_3_false
```

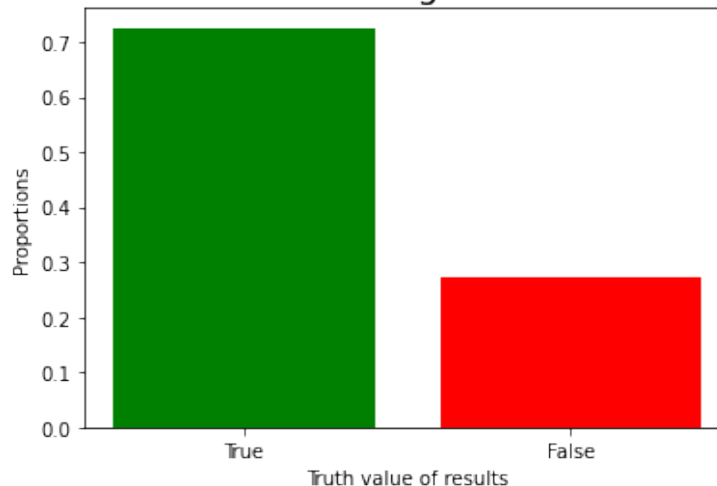

```
[68]: 0.27435387673956263

Results: These results indicate that the true dog predictions in the first prediction are about 0.75 while the false dog predictions make up about 0.25 of all predictions. To get better insights about these proportions, we need to visualize the results.

4.4.3 Visualization of the proportions of True and False dog results in the third prediction

[69]: results = ['True', 'False']
proportions = [prop_prediction_3_true, prop_prediction_3_false]
colors = ['green', 'red'] plt.bar(results, proportions, color = colors) plt.title('proportions of True and False dog results in the third prediction', →fontsize=18)
plt.xlabel('Truth value of results', fontsize=10)
plt.ylabel('Proportions', fontsize=10);

proportions of True and False dog results in the third prediction

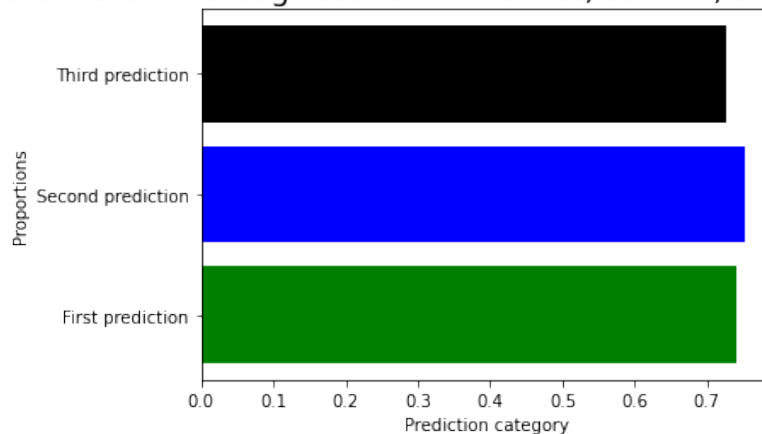

4.5 Question 1D: How do the proportions of true dog results for the first, second, and third prediction compare against each other?

To compare the three truth results, we generate a bar graph that visualizes all the proportions in one frame

4.5.1 Visualization of Proportions of true dog results for the first, second, and third prediction

[70]: classes = ['First prediction', 'Second prediction', 'Third prediction'] proportions = [prop_prediction_1_true, prop_prediction_2_true,
               prop_prediction_3_true]
colors = ['green', 'blue', 'black'] plt.barh(classes, proportions, color = colors) plt.title('Proportions of true dog results for the first, second, and third_ prediction', fontsize=18)
plt.xlabel('Prediction category', fontsize=10)
plt.ylabel('Proportions', fontsize=10);
```

Proportions of true dog results for the first, second, and third prediction

Results: This visualization shows that all the three predictions; the first, second, and third, all yielded almost similar proportions of true dog image results.

4.6 Question 2: Compare the population of dogs in different stages.

[71]: df_clean.dog_stage.value_counts()
```

```
[71]: pupper          204
doggo             63
puppo             23
doggopupper       11
floofer           7
doggopuppo        1
```

```
doggofloofer      1
Name: dog_stage, dtype: int64
```

The above values indicate that some dogs have multiple dogstages entered. To assess where the error came from, let's check the entries in the original dataframe.

[72]: Dog_tweets_df.query('doggo == "doggo" & pupper == "pupper"')['tweet_id'].
      →value_counts().sum()
```

```
[72]: 12
```

```
[73]: Dog_tweets_df.query('doggo == "doggo" & puppo == "puppo"')['tweet_id'].
      →value_counts().sum()
```

```
[73]: 1
```

```
[74]: Dog_tweets_df.query('doggo == "doggo" & floofer == "floofer"')['tweet_id'].
      →value_counts().sum()
```

```
[74]: 1
```

The above information from the original dataframe suggests the error was most likely in the data entry process. some dogs have been listed in more than one stage. Since we have no means of identifying which of the two listed dog-stages is correct, we will have to work without the erroneously listed stages. Therefore, we visualize only the stages that have one dog stage entered.

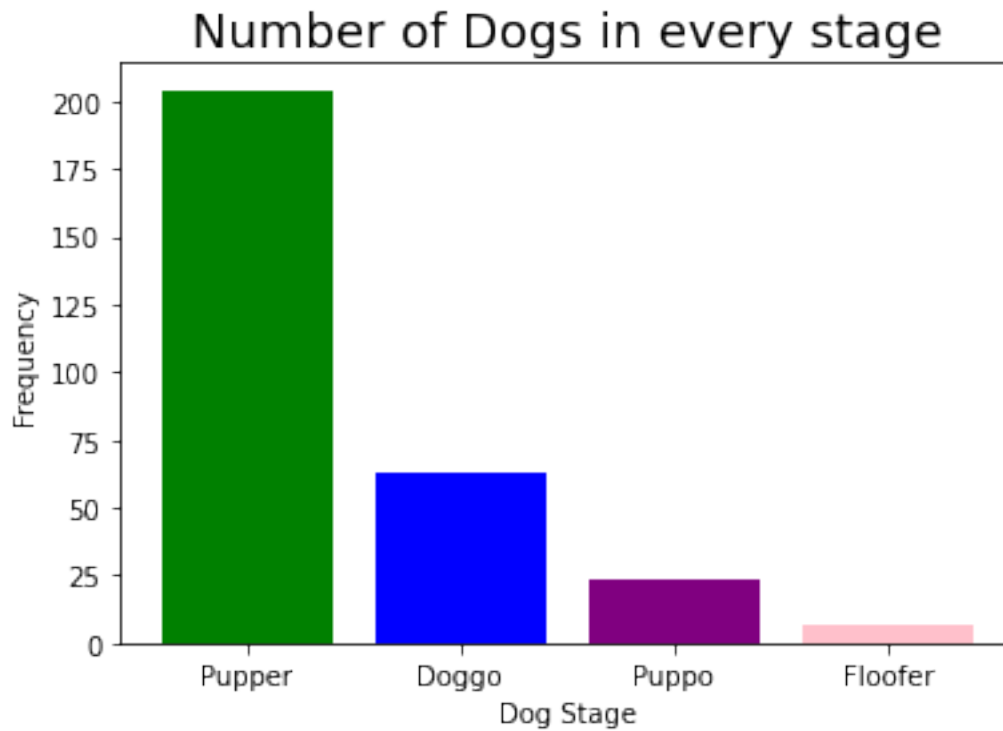

4.6.1 Visualization of the various dog stages

[75]: # Counts of every dog stage
pupper_count = df_clean.query('dog_stage == "pupper"')['tweet_id'].
      →value_counts().sum()
doggo_count = df_clean.query('dog_stage == "doggo"')['tweet_id'].value_counts().
      →sum() puppo_count = df_clean.query('dog_stage == "puppo"')['tweet_id'].value_counts().
      →sum()
floofer_count = df_clean.query('dog_stage == "floofer"')['tweet_id'].
      →value_counts().sum()
```

```
[76]: dog_stage = ['Pupper', 'Doggo', 'Puppo', 'Floofer'] counts = [pupper_count, doggo_count, puppo_count, floofer_count] colors = ['green', 'blue', 'purple', 'pink'] plt.bar(dog_stage, counts, color = colors)
plt.title('Number of Dogs in every stage', fontsize=18)
plt.xlabel('Dog Stage', fontsize=10)
plt.ylabel('Frequency', fontsize=10);

Percentage of recorded dog-stages

This shows that of the dogs whose dog stage has been listed in the data, pupper has the highest number, followed by Doggo, then puppo, and lastly

5 Conclusion

- The image prediction results for the first, the second, and the third predictions all give between 72 % and 76% true dog images

- From a general perspective, this suggests that the three predictions have an almost equal degree of success ##### - Considering only the dogs whose dog stage had been listed in the data:
- Pupper constitutes about 68.7 %
- Doggo constitutes about 21.2 %
- Puppo constitutes about 7.7 %
- Floofer constitutes about 2.4 %
